

2018-19
ADVOCACY
SEASON

Teams win national titles and continue tradition of excellence

Hunton Andrews Kurth Moot Court National Championship

Third-year students Thomas Grantham, Timia Skelton (center) and Simone Ford brought home the Hunton Andrews Kurth Moot Court National Championship, which is considered a tournament featuring the “best of the best.” This invitation-only contest puts the top 16 moot court programs from law schools across the country, based on performances from the previous academic year, against each other in the courtroom.

Intrastate Moot Court Competition

Second-year law students Justin Van Orsdol (left), Frances Plunkett and Kip O’Kelley captured the top trophy in the Intrastate Moot Court Competition. They also won the Best Brief Award. This is the second year in a row and the seventh time in 10 years that UGA has won this tournament in which all five law schools in Georgia field two teams.

William B. Spong Invitational Moot Court Tournament

The School of Law won the 48th Annual William B. Spong Invitational Moot Court Tournament in February. Second-year students Spencer Woody (left) and John Lex Kenerly were coached by third-year student Shaudie Fassih (right).

Florida/Georgia-Hulsey/Gambrell Moot Court Competition

UGA defeated the University of Florida in the annual Florida/ Georgia-Hulsey/Gambrell Moot Court Competition held each October. Third-year students Miles Skedsvold and Jennifer Cotton represented the School of Law and increased Georgia’s lead in the tournament’s history to 23-11-2.