Please note: Some jurisdictions, including New York, impose additional credit requirements for the bar exam. If a student plans to take the bar exam in a jurisdiction other than Georgia, the student needs to contact that jurisdiction as early as possible in the student's educational program to determine the precise requirements to sit for the bar exam and confer with the Director of Dual Degree Programs at the law school.

Reminder: To be eligible for graduation, a student must maintain an average of 3.0 both on the graduate transcript and on all courses on the program of study. No grade below C will be accepted as part of a program of study for a graduate degree. For information about good standing for the JD program, please refer to the School of Law Student Handbook.
